Goodchild Promoted to Senior Director of Business Development

KALAMAZOO, Mich., March 18, 2013 – Skanska USA announced today that Kristin Goodchild has been promoted to senior director of business development for Michigan, Indiana and Northern Ohio.

In her new role, Goodchild will expand the company's network of community relationships, develop new business and focus on growing the Indiana and Northern Ohio markets. Goodchild's previous position was director of business development.

Throughout her five years with Skanska, Goodchild has been involved with numerous projects, including the new terminal at the Kalamazoo/Battle Creek International Airport and the new cardiovascular institute at Detroit Medical Center in Detroit.

Goodchild, who has 16 years of construction experience, has been recognized for her professional achievements and contributions to the industry. The National Association of Women in Construction's Kalamazoo chapter awarded Goodchild the 2011 Crystal Vision Award for advancing the success of women in the construction industry.

Goodchild received her bachelor's degree in accounting from Davenport University. She is on the board of directors for the Architecture, Construction and Engineering (ACE) Mentor program of Michigan and serves as president of the Kalamazoo Humane Society.
