Skanska builds health and human services building at University in New Haven, Connecticut for $48 million contract

Skanska has signed a contract with the state of Connecticut to build a new Southern Connecticut State University health and human services building in New Haven, Connecticut. The contract is worth $48 million which will be included in the US order bookings for the fourth quarter of 2019.

The project includes the construction of a new four-story 8,800 square-meter (94,750 square-foot) building, which will combine services from several existing campus buildings. The project intent is to collocate the University's health and human services departments. The project will pursue LEED Gold certification in compliance with the state of Connecticut's High Performance Building Standards.

Construction will begin in January 2020 and is scheduled for completion in August 2021.
