Skanska Promotes Phillips and D'Amario

MILFORD, Conn., February 5, 2008 – Skanska USA Building Inc.

announced today that it promoted David Phillips to Senior Project Manager and Oliver (Ollie) D'Amario to Senior Estimator.

As a Senior Project Manager, Phillips will provide overall management direction to project teams and be the day-to-day contact for the owner of each project. He also will coordinate budget estimates, scheduling, purchasing and procurement.

Phillips has 26 years experience in the construction industry, including 15 years in the construction of hospitals and medical office buildings in the Northeast such as Stamford Hospital, Middlesex Hospital – both in Connecticut – and the Philip J. Bean Medical Center in Hollywood, Md. He is currently working on the Stamford Hospital project.

He performed coursework in Civil Engineering at the University of Hartford and attended the School of Engineering at the University of Connecticut.

D'Amario, who brings more than 16 years of estimating experience to the Skanska project team, is responsible for leading the estimating and value engineering of all Connecticut projects. As the lead member of the value engineering team, he will identify areas for possible cost savings.
